REAPPLICATION POLICY AND PROCEDURE

Applicants
Applicants wishing to change their application to a different term will be required to submit a new application and pay the non-refundable application fee.

Admitted Students
Students who are accepted into a degree program and fail to enroll for the term of acceptance are not guaranteed acceptance for future terms. In some programs, students may contact The Graduate College about the possibility of a deferral for a maximum of two terms.

Once admitted, students are expected to enroll each fall and spring term (summer is optional). If students do not take classes in a fall or spring term, they need to reactivate their record.

Previously enrolled students must submit the update application form (http://www.gradcollege.txstate.edu/forms/update.html) in order to enroll if it has been less than a year since their last enrollment.

Any student failing to enroll within a one-year period will be required to submit a new admission application and non-refundable application fee. Other application documents may be required. Students should review additional enrollment requirements and policies that relate to their program of study. Please see the leave of absence policy in the Academic and Grading Policies section of this catalog for more information.
