

---

Academic advising for students is handled through the student's major department (or minor department if applicable) after the student has received formal acceptance to The Graduate College. This method of advisement ensures that students will receive sound academic advice from faculty in their chosen field of study. Students must adhere to program-specific policies and procedures listed in departmental handbooks and may wish to discuss these policies and procedures with their graduate program advisor.