

The graduate minor in Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies requires 9-15 semester credit hours. The Graduate College and the Center for Diversity and Gender Studies offers this interdisciplinary program that concentrates on the fields of women's studies, gender studies, sexuality studies, and queer studies. Drawing on recent scholarship about women, gender and sexuality, this minor provides a flexible, coherent program that enables students to complement any major with the study of the significance of gender and sexuality. The Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies minor helps students create opportunities for themselves in a rapidly changing society.
